Teaching and Learning in the 2020s – Jonathan Bond As we emerge from the Covid epidemic, and with government and Ofsted priorities becoming clearer, now is the ideal time to explore what teaching and learning will look like in the next few years. This session outlines these key developments including effective curriculum design, memory theory, metacognition, effective subject leadership, Rosenshine's principles, adaption, phonics, reading culture and, of course, Covid recovery. The session will unravel the theory and expectations around these areas and also offer practical solutions for the primary school. For the last sixteen years, following his work for Essex Local Authority as an English and curriculum advisor, Jonathan Bond has been a freelance education consultant. He has successfully supported and developed schools and their staff across Essex, Thurrock, Havering, Suffolk and Hertfordshire. His areas of expertise include teaching and learning, assessment, English, LSA and MDA development, learning mentoring and subject leadership. Jonathan is also the author of 'The English Planning Kit', 'The English Assessment Kit' and 'The English Kit 2020'. He specialises in bespoke CPD which is highly practical, inspiring and child-centred.	9.20 -10.45
