What's working in our primary schools? Practical solutions to shared challenges This workshop will give headteachers a chance to share their ideas on improving attendance, inclusion and pupil engagement without adding to staff workload. These are interconnected challenges for primary schools, and this headteacher meeting is an ideal opportunity to share approaches that are already working rather than simply discuss the problems. By the end of the session, headteachers will have: • Shared practical approaches that have made a difference in their schools. • Identified why some strategies work in one context but not another.	11.30 – 12 noon

• Explored ways to improve outcomes without creating unnecessary workload. • Agreed one action to trial and one area where schools could work together.
